GREAT SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY .- Dr. Ferrier, of King's College, has succeeded in almost completing a map of the brain, with its organs, distinguished by the sure and rigorous test of experiment. Noth-ing could surpass the interest of those experiments. On the table before the experiments. On the table before the spectator is a dog, with the top of its skull removed. All seems, but for the breathing and moving of the brain, an inert mass of dead matter. The doctor applies the electrode, and presently the tail begins to wag. All else is motionless. Another touch, and its forepaw is stretched out; another, and its head is stretched out; another, and its head is erected; another, and its mouth opens. Again the magic wand touches the brain, and the animal seems convulsed with fear and rage; and so the experiments go on. This discovery, so simple now that it is known, will effect almost a revolution in physiology. One of the chief results attained by Dr. Ferrier is the belief that each convulsion is a separate orean aleach convulsion is a separate organ, al-though occasionally several may be con-joined for common work. He also finds joined for common work. He also finds that the great motion-centers are collected in the front part of the brain—a result that shows the phrenologists were not far wrong in that quarter. The discovery shows why considerable portions of the brain may be diseased without interferring with sanity, and why other slight lesions produce epilepsy. Dr. Ferrier has also found out the origin of chorea, or St. Vitus' Dance, and has been able to make animals show all the symptoms of the disease sritificially. At the instance of Professor Huxley, the Royal Society has come handsomely forward, and voted a grant to Dr. Ferrier to carry out his experiments on monkeys. carry out his experiments on monkeys.

A man in Pennsylvania has invented a rat-trap that is made to operate upon the selfish passions of the poor rat and lure him into trouble. A mirror is set in back part of the device, beyond the bait; and as his ratship is out on a foraging expedition he espies the bait, at the same believing time his own image in the mirror to be another rat making for it on the opposite side. This is too much for rat nature to stand and be cool over; so he rushes for the bait and
